DETAILED ACTION

Claims 1 and 2 are under consideration in this application.

Priority

Applicants asserts that examiner stated that priority documents had not been submitted to the Office. The examiner never said that the documents had not been received. The priority documents were acknowledged in the previous Office Action Summary mailed May 7, 2004.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The rejection under 35 USC 102 is hereby withdrawn in view of applicants' amendments to the claims.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1 and 2 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the combined teachings of Sakya et al. and Pascal et al. for the reasons set forth in the previous Office action.

Applicants have now amended the claims to recite the R₂ is only methyl. However, the compounds of Pascal et al. differ from the compounds claimed herein as position isomers. Note examples 17-27, etc., of Pascal et al. One having ordinary skill in the art would have been motivated by the disclosure of the prior art compound to arrive at other compounds within the claimed genus as well as at the claimed species. Further, Sakya et al. teach that the compounds wherein R₂ is amino are known to have pharmaceutical activity. The motivation to make these compounds is their close structural similarities to the disclosed compound. Note that the disclosed compound has pharmaceutical activity, thus the skilled artisan would expect such structurally similar compounds to possess similar properties. While homology is considered to be present even if true "homology" is not present, such does not defeat the prima facie case of obviousness raised by the art. Attention, in this regard is directed to In re Druey et al., 50 CCPA 1538, 319 F.2d 237, 138 USPQ 39, wherein Judge Worley, delivering the Court's opinion, stated:

that in "We need not decide here whether the compounds in question are properly labeled homologues. It appears to us from the authorities cited by the solicitor and appellants the term homologue is used by chemists at times in a broad sense, and at other times a narrow or strict sense. The name used to designate the relationship between the related compound is not necessarily controlling; it is the closeness of that relationship which is indicative of the obviousness or unobviousness of the new compound." 50 CCPA 1541.

Also, as the Court stated in In re Payne et al., 606 F.2d 302, 203 USPQ 245 at 255 (CCPA 1979):

"the name used to designate the relationship between related compounds is not necessarily controlling; it is the closeness of that relationship which is indicative of the obviousness or unobviousness of the new compound."

In addition, any question of why would one conceive and use the similar compounds (i.e. "motivation") is answered by the Court in In re Gyurik et al., 596 F.2d 1012, 201 USPQ 552 at 557.

"In obviousness rejections based in close similarity in chemical structure, the necessary motivation to make a claimed compound, and thus the prima facie case of obviousness, rises from the expectation that compounds similar in structure will have similar properties.”

Applicants do not point to any objective evidence which demonstrates that the claimed compounds as a class exhibit any properties which are actually different from the closest prior compounds embraced by Muller et al. In re Wilder, 563 F.2d 457, 195 USPQ 426 (CCPA 1977); In re Hoch, 428 F.2d 1341, 166 USPQ 406 (CCPA 1970).

Applicants have failed to establish any unexpected or unobvious properties for the instant compounds vis-à-vis the prior art compounds. Attorney's arguments in the instant response does not take place of objective evidence.

Conclusion

No claim is allowed.

Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
